

WITNESS' STORY IS CORROBORATED

Woman Confirms Eye-witness Claim of Seeing Hall Murder

MRS. HALL IS ACTIVE

She Starts Her Own Investigation of Crime So She can "Clear Her Own Name"

By the Associated Press.
NEW BRUNSWICK, N. J., Nov. 6. Mrs. A. C. Fray, resident of the house that was the scene of the murder of Mrs. J. Edgar Hall, said today that she was an eye-witness to the crime and that she was active in the investigation of the case.

After quizzing Mrs. Fray for nearly three hours, Mason said he considered her "a most important witness," asserting that she had corroborated the amazing "eye-witness" story of Mrs. J. Edgar Hall, who appeared at the courthouse shortly after noon for questioning by Mason.

By International News Service.
NEW BRUNSWICK, N. J., Nov. 6. To emphasize and drive home her protestations of innocence, Mrs. Frances Stevens Hall has begun an individual investigation into the murder of her husband, Rev. Edward Wheeler Hall, rector of the Protestant Episcopal church of St. John the Evangelist, and the beautiful choir singer, Mrs. James Mills, it was learned today.

Mrs. Hall, whose demand to appear before Somerset county grand jury this week probably will be refused, told family friends that while she has not seeking vengeance, she wanted the mystery cleared up and her own name cleared.

Mrs. Hall, through her lawyer, Timothy Proffier, has retained Felix J. Martini, a private detective, to investigate the case. She said she was willing to pay for the investigation, but since the investigation against Mrs. Hall have increased she has ordered him to undertake a separate investigation to try to solve the murder mystery.

BRING CHURCHES TOGETHER

Advisability of Establishing Federated Council Considered.

The advisability of establishing in this city a federated council of churches, by means of which Protestant churches would co-operate closely in religious and community work, is now being considered by the ministerial alliance. A favorable report on the success of similar federations in such cities as New York, Chicago, Cleveland, St. Louis and Dayton were presented by Rev. R. P. Crum, chairman of a special investigating committee, other members of which are Rev. W. H. Murphy and Rev. Leslie Miller. In all the cities from which reports and surveys were received, the federations were composed of both ministerial and laymen representatives of the individual churches.

The alliance endorsed the coming here of Col. Dan Morgan Smith, soldier orator, on January 14, under the auspices of the World Temperance league. Colonel Smith commanded the "Battalion of Death," the first battalion of the 358th infantry, 90th division, which went into the St. Mihiel sector with 112 men and came out with 327 men.

Primitive Boys, Caught in Woods, Chatter as Apes

CAIRO, Ill., Nov. 6.—Two small boys about 5 and 10 years old, have been returned to civilization after living in a forest for an indefinite period like their prehistoric ancestors.

The two boys were caught in the thickly wooded hills of Pulaski county after a long chase by a sheriff's posse. The youngsters, dressed in rags and unable to speak, fought like little wild beasts against being captured, scratching and biting members of the posse before their childish strength finally succumbed.

Their existence was first discovered by a woman who noticed them while walking through the forest. She notified the sheriff and he set out in search of them several days of patrolling the wooded hills they struck into the deeply wooded section and caught sight of the children.

The youngsters fled at the approach of the posse, one climbing a tree with the agility of a monkey and such chattering to each other in monosyllabic words.

Who they are and how long they have been living in this cave-like fashion has not been ascertained, but the boys were unable to understand words they were spoken to and were naively interested in civilized clothing and food. They had been subsisting on wild roots and other animals which they caught and ate raw.

Signal From Fliers Saves Pilot's Life; Makes Leap to River

DANVILLE, Ill., Nov. 6.—Signal from the air by other aviators, Capt. Lawrence H. Hickey of Rantoul field, was saved from possible fatal injuries Saturday evening, when he piloted his plane down over the Wabash river and jumped. When he left the flying field one of the wheels on his plane fell off. Lieutenants Carr and McDuffie immediately took the air and were able to make him understand his predicament. Realizing a landing on earth would result in a smashup, he flew to Danville, but could not find a place in the Vermillion river wide enough to attempt a landing. He then flew on to the Wabash and as his machine sailed over the surface of the water, jumped. The two other pilots were close behind and rescued him.

Reported British Interests Will Build Line in Mexico From Ojinaga to Toluca.

MEXICO CITY, Nov. 6.—Completion of the proposed line of the Mexican Central railway from Ojinaga to Toluca, it was learned today, is merely under consideration with the possibility that final negotiations will be started today. The line is being built by the British capital.

Delbert James Huff of Kansas City, representing the Orient cable, said today that the right of way, on which no tracks have been laid, extends for more than 250 kilometers. His advice from Kansas City indicates that the probability that the operation of the line in Mexico will be under British control.

SEEK WHITE COLLAR JOBS

Disabled War Veterans Favor Commercial Positions, Official States.

White-collar workers to be sought by the disabled war veterans who before the war worked mostly with their hands, while on the other hand the indoor workers of private war days were vocationally handicapped by war service make new choice of outdoor vocations. This is the observation by Frank S. Clesker, commercial training superintendent of the United States veterans' bureau in Oklahoma, Texas and Arkansas, who is on a several days' visit to the Tulsa sub-district office.

Commercial subjects and mechanical trades run a close race for popularity among the ex-service men in training in the three-state district No. 14 of the veterans' bureau, Clesker says, practically the same number of men, approximately 1,200, being in training in each of the three branches of commercial training, those most followed are the clerical.

While in the city, Clesker will go over the record of the sub-district office and visit the business colleges and other educational institutions where commercial training are enrolled. He will visit the Oklahoma city office and other state offices later this week.

Competition "Friendly," Gary Tells Commission

WASHINGTON, Nov. 6.—There is no active competition between the Carnegie and the Illinois Steel company, subsidiaries of the United States Steel corporation, but there is "good natured" competition to influence each company to do the best.

Judge Elbert H. Gary, head of the United States Steel corporation, today told the federal trade commission. He appeared as a witness in the commission's complaint against the corporation for the "alleged unfair practices" in the use of the so-called "Pittsburgh base" in the sale of steel products.

DEMOCRATS TOO STRONG TO LOSE POWER IN STATE

Their country before their party in order to defeat the purpose of the reconstruction league which he showed by records to be an offshoot of the North Dakota nonpartisan league. Constitutional democrats were exuberant over the affair and pointed out that it afforded the strongest evidence that the constitutional variety of democrats are standing strongly against the capture of the party by socialists.

By the Associated Press.
OKLAHOMA CITY, Nov. 6.—The last shooting of Oklahoma's most bitter political war was concluded tonight. The contending forces after a final outbreak stifled their verbal barter to await what the people say.

J. C. Walton, the democratic candidate for governor, wound up his campaign tonight with a rally in the Capitol Hill section of Oklahoma City, after belittling last-minute speeches during the day at Edmond and Shawnee.

In his address, he dealt with the same line of argument as he had used in his earlier speeches. He declared he would stand on a platform written by farmers and workers and "the small business man" and that he would stand on the opposite of "a platform written and controlled by a bunch of corporation lawyers and aristocrats."

Walton appealed to his hearers to support him because of the "benefit" which had accrued to them during his term as mayor of Oklahoma City and attacked the newspapers as purveyors of slander and misinformation.

"Last-minute attempts will be made to poison your minds against me," he declared. "Pay no attention to them. Believe me, I am the only man in this room who has been trying earnestly to help the working people who can see it. I haven't changed."

"We are all supported by the small working man, the small, honest business man and the farmer and please God, I am not forgetting it."

"I don't know John Fields," Walton declared. "I don't know his character and I wouldn't say anything about it if I did, but if those who voted for a change during the Harding administration aren't sick of it, and have decided they want to switch to the same kind of a movement again, I am through."

"I will be elected and I will see that the common people get what they need."

U. S. Marshals Guard Ballots.
Sharp eyes of federal officers will watch over polls in the western district of Oklahoma Tuesday to insure that every legal voter enjoys the right of suffrage, according to a statement issued tonight by Alva McDonald, United States marshal.

Deputy marshals have been appointed throughout the district in sufficient numbers so that no voter need be denied the right of exercising his franchise, he declared. Any irregularities will result in a new election.
